

Champions for Jesus Ministries is a Christian ministry based in San Antonio, Texas who needed dire assistance with their website. After a recommendation from a friend, they reached out to Project 1000 for a total website redesign. Their current site was incomplete with missing information such as images and text. In limbo with their web designer for over 7 months, they decided it was time for a change due to lack of communication. Their main goals were to have a professional website redesigned and completed in a timely manner and to have a great level of communication with their next web master.

Matthew Champion, the Pastor of Champions for Jesus Ministries, hired Project 1000 for the job.

Project 1000 quickly met with Matthew & his wife to see how we could create a better experience for them and meet their website needs. In keeping an open line of communication, our design team was able to create a responsive and easy to navigate website. The end result was a visually appealing website design that captured their brand image and identity allowing them to extend the outreach of their ministry.

Client Testimonial

“I sought out Project 1000 from a recommendation of a friend. At the time, I had a website and designer, but I was not pleased with the design or services provided.

Project 1000 took the time to find out exactly what we desired in our website, and quickly responded. The level of communication was professional and anytime I’ve needed to make an adjustment to the website, Project 1000 has always responded quickly.

Dee and Alicia care about meeting the needs of their clients; definitely a pleasant experience. My wife and I were impressed with Project 1000 from our first interaction. I highly recommend Project 1000.”

Matthew Champion, Pastor of Champions for Jesus Ministries

